

We don't have any warranties with our products but do stand behind them and handle issues as they arise. Generally issues with our products will occur at the time of installation, which usually arises if a customer puts a part in wrong or has an over use of glue. Once the customer gets the product installed they are good to go. In all the years our product has been on the market we haven't had one single issue after install.

Let us know if you have other questions. Thanks.
